Appendix 2 General Terms of the Tenancy Agreement for Accommodation, 15-11-2016

The scope of application of these terms and conditions

Article 1

These General Tenancy Terms and Conditions form part of the tenancy agreement, in which they have been declared applicable. If the provisions of the tenancy agreement deviate from those of the General Tenancy Terms and Conditions, the provisions of the tenancy agreement will prevail.

Multiple tenants

Article 2

2.1.

The tenants referred to at the beginning of the tenancy agreement each have an independent and full right to tenancy, which they exercise simultaneously, respecting each other's rights.

2.2.

Each tenant is jointly and severally liable for the full amount of the rent and for all other obligations arising for him and for the other tenant(s) pursuant to this agreement and pursuant to the law.

2.3.

The rent, costs of utility services with an individual meter and the service charges will be payable as one payment for the joint tenancy rights referred to above. If the agreement is terminated with regard to one tenant or a number of tenants, the remaining tenant(s) will remain liable for payment of the full amount of the rent, the costs of utility services with an individual meter and the service charges.

2.4.

The tenancy agreement may only be terminated by notice of termination to or by the tenant or all the tenants, as the case may be, referred to at the beginning of the agreement. The tenants referred to at the beginning of the agreement are therefore only entitled to terminate the tenancy jointly, unless the landlord explicitly agrees to a single termination by one of the tenants referred to at the beginning of the agreement.

If the landlord is obliged by virtue of a statutory or contractual regulation to deliver a performance to a tenant, fulfilment to one of the tenants referred to at the beginning of the tenancy agreement will discharge the landlord from its obligation.

Availability and acceptance of the rented accommodation

Article 3

3.1.

The landlord will make the rented accommodation available on the commencement date of the tenancy, unless this is not a working day.

3.2.

Before or on commencement of the tenancy agreement the tenant and landlord will draw up a description of the rented accommodation. The tenant and landlord will receive a copy of this description, whether or not electronically, signed by both parties.

Costs of utility services with an individual meter and service charges

Article 4

4.1.

The tenant will pay a monthly advance payment for the costs of utility services with an individual meter and service charges. In any case once a year the landlord will provide the tenant with a breakdown of the costs of utility services with an individual meter and the service charges charged in the relevant calendar year.

The landlord will then set off with the tenant any discrepancies between the costs incurred and the costs of utility services with an individual meter and the service charges paid by the tenant in advance, unless it concerns a payment for a fund set up by the landlord. With regard to these funds the advance payment paid by the tenant will be considered equivalent to the final settlement and therefore no setoff will take place.

Unless agreed otherwise between the parties in a further agreement, the monthly advance sum agreed between the landlord and the tenant may only be increased with effect from the first month following the month in which the breakdown referred to in the first paragraph of this article was provided.

4.3.

The tenant will be bound by a change in the provision of supplies or services, or by a change in the calculation method of the supplies and services provided, and the corresponding adjusted advance sum, if that change relates to supplies and services that can only be provided to a number of tenants jointly and if at least 70% of these tenants have agreed to the change.

A tenant who has not agreed to the change may request a court decision on the reasonableness of the proposal within eight weeks of the written notification by the landlord that agreement has been reached with at least 70% of the tenants.

If not at least 70% have agreed, the tenant will be bound by a change in the provision of supplies or services, or by a change in the calculation method of the supplies and services provided, and the corresponding advance sum, if:

1. the interest of the landlord in the change is such that the tenant - taking reasonable account of the interests of both parties - may not withhold his consent to this change and
2. the landlord has informed the tenant in good time of the change and has discussed this with the tenant, with the residents' committee, if present, and with the tenants' organization, if required.

General obligations of the landlord

Article 5

The landlord is obliged to repair defects to the rented accommodation should the tenant so require, unless this is impossible or the landlord cannot reasonably be expected to incur the required expenses in the given circumstances, or these expenses are payable by the tenant pursuant to the law, this tenancy agreement or the use.

Obligations of the tenant

Article 6

6.1.

The tenant will pay the rent due for the rented accommodation in its entirety in advance before the first day of the month by transferring the amount due in the manner indicated by the landlord.

The tenant is not permitted to perform any business activities in the rented accommodation, parts of the rented accommodation or in the communal areas.

Communal circulation spaces include stairwells, lifts, basements, attics, garages, storage spaces, galleries, gardens, courtyards and roof terraces in so far as the tenant shares the use of these spaces with other tenants or users.

6.5.

The tenant will actually live in the rented accommodation during the term of the tenancy and will actually use the residential space for himself. The tenant will use the rented accommodation as his principal residence. If the tenant does not actually live in the rented accommodation or sublets all or part of the rented accommodation without the landlord's permission or lets the rented accommodation or gives it in use to a third party, the burden of proof that the tenant has had his principal residence in the rented accommodation without interruption will fall on the tenant.

6.6.

Only with the landlord's prior written permission will the tenant be permitted to sublet all or part of the rented accommodation or give it in use to a third party or offer, via the internet or otherwise, the rented accommodation to let or use to third parties. A request for permission must be submitted in writing, stating the name of the subtenant, the rent payable under the subtenancy and the commencement date of the subtenancy agreement. The landlord is authorized to attach conditions to its permission.

In the event of unauthorized subtenancy the tenant will be obliged to surrender any income received from the subtenancy to the landlord. In addition the tenant will owe an immediately payable penalty of € 2,500 plus € 50 (price level November 2013 indexed in accordance with the consumer price index All Households of Statistics Netherlands) per day for each day that the breach continues, up to a maximum of € 15,000.

The tenant must ensure that the tenant himself, his household members, pets or third persons who are present in, around or in the immediate vicinity of the rented accommodation or the communal areas on account of the tenant do not create a nuisance for people living in neighbouring properties.

The tenant must also act as a good tenant towards employees of the landlord and/or any third parties engaged by the landlord. In the event of physical or verbal violence, aggression or other forms of misconduct, appropriate legal or other measures will be taken against the tenant, which may result in termination of the tenancy agreement.

The tenant is not permitted to grow, dry or cut cannabis in the rented accommodation, or to allow others to do so, or to perform or have others perform other activities that are punishable under the Opium Act. In the event of breach of this prohibition the tenant will owe an immediately payable penalty of € 2,500 plus € 50 (price level November 2013 indexed in accordance with the consumer price index All Households of Statistics Netherlands) per day for each day that the breach continues, up to a maximum of € 15,000.

6.9.

The tenant is obliged to use his front and back garden as ornamental or vegetable garden and maintain the garden in such a manner as to give a well-cared-for impression, in the opinion of the landlord, and will not plant any trees, shrubs or other plants that may cause a nuisance to third parties.

The landlord has the right to demand that the tenant remove any trees and/or high-growing plants planted by him at his expense at the end of the tenancy.

The tenant is not permitted to use the garden or other rented external space(s) for storing and/or parking vehicles, boats, caravans, trailers, merchandise, waste, dangerous or environmentally harmful materials and any other items of any nature whatsoever.

The tenant is also not permitted to use the communal areas for storing and/or parking bicycles, prams and pushchairs, merchandise, waste, dangerous or environmentally harmful materials and any other items of any nature whatsoever. If the tenant breaches the above, the landlord will be entitled to remove these items at the expense of the tenant.

The tenant will keep the rented accommodation properly furnished, including floor covering and curtains. In multi-storey buildings the floor covering must provide sufficient sound dampening.

6.12.

The tenant is obliged to take the necessary measures to prevent damage to the rented accommodation, in particular in the event of fire, storm, water and frost. The tenant must report any damage or imminent damage, whatever the cause, as well as any defects to the rented accommodation to the landlord without delay.

In the event of negligence by the tenant in this respect any damage to the rented accommodation and to third parties' property caused as a result will be payable by the tenant.

The tenant will give the landlord access to the rented accommodation to enable the landlord to monitor the tenant's compliance with his obligations under these General Tenancy Terms and Conditions or to carry out any necessary work or to enable the meters to be read or suchlike. The landlord is also taken to mean: persons designated by or on behalf of the landlord.

6.14.

If the tenant's right to tenancy is terminated due to divorce or a judicial separation, the tenant will be obliged to notify the landlord in writing of the termination of his right to tenancy, immediately after the relevant court order has become irrevocable. As long as the tenant has not done so, he will remain liable towards the landlord for compliance with all obligations under this tenancy agreement. The above also applies to the termination of a registered partnership.

The co-tenant is obliged to notify the landlord in writing without delay if he decides to continue the tenancy agreement as a tenant.

Article 7

7.1

8.3.

The landlord will send the tenant a written proposal for any intended refurbishment of all or part of the complex of which the rented accommodation forms part. This proposal will be deemed to be reasonable if 70% or more of the tenants in the complex have agreed to it. If the tenant has not agreed to the proposal and within eight (8) weeks of the landlord's written notification that 70% or more of the tenants have agreed to the proposal has not applied to the court for a decision on the reasonableness of the proposal, he will be bound to it. The tenant will in that case be obliged to cooperate in the performance of the work.

8.4.

With the exception of urgent work, the work referred to will take place on working days following prior notification of the date and time.

Alterations and additions by the tenant

Article 9

9.1.

Appendix 3 Standing orders of Ministerie van Marine

You are a tenant of an apartment in a residential building. As a user of the building you should be aware that living close together may easily result in nuisance. A number of household rules have been combined to form standing orders to protect the enjoyment of the property by all users as much as possible. This is a supplement to the tenancy agreement and the General Tenancy Terms and Conditions.

The provisions of these standing orders apply to all users. Every tenant is liable for full compliance with the provisions of the standing orders by their family members and other users of his apartment.

GENERAL

The tenants must agree in writing to the contents of the standing orders in advance.
